192nd Battalion Off For Sarcee

Presentation of Colors is Made by Pass Citizens

Word was received in Blairmore on Wednesday morning that the 192nd Overseas Battalion was to leave for Sarcee on Friday, where they would spend some time in training before proceeding to the front.

On Wednesday evening an advance charge of forty men left for Calgary with Capt. T. Harnett and Lieut. W. Elder, to make preparations for the reception of the battalion.

Since the news of such an early departure was received, a number of citizens of the Pass got to work, and arrangements were made to bid farewell to the officers and members of the Home Battalion and to present them with some small token of appreciation. Accordingly, the opera house tonight was filled to overflowing at 8:30, while fully three hundred people were turned away, failing to find even standing room in the spacious building.

The meeting opened with Mayor Sinclair in the chair, supported by Rev. W. T. Young, W. K. Allen, E. H. Gray, and Fr. Crocetta, Messrs. J. E. Gilling, Mayor Morrison (of Coleman), Harold Green, W. Shaw, J. C. Boudreau, W. P. Williams, Lieut. Col. Lyon, Capt. Launcer, Capt. McDonald and others. A choir of about one hundred children from the local school were also in attendance.

In his opening remarks, Mayor Sinclair expressed regret that the short time at their disposal would not permit of carrying out the full programme arranged for the evening. On behalf of the Town of Blairmore he wished Lieut. Col. Lyon, his officers and men every success.

Dr. E. H. Gray led in prayer, which was followed by a selection by the Coleman city band.

The first speaker was J. F. Hunter, Mr. Hunter opened his remarks by saying that "This was an historic day. There had been one other historic day in Blairmore, the day on which Lieut. Col. Lyon undertook the enormous task of raising a battalion locally for overseas service, which marked a red-letter day for the Pass. This was another historic day, when the members of the 192nd Battalion are called away from their homes and friends to go to camp. There is a doubt whether they will ever return to us. This is a day when our hearts are stirred. It was a day of sentiment, and it should be. Feelings of patriotism rouse our hearts, and we see a great number here who have been roused by feelings of patriotism, who are going forth to fight for the British Empire. We belong to the British Empire. I had a great many things to say, but the time is short. I will just say, Lieut. Col. Lyon and staff, and members of the 192nd Battalion, I bid you farewell and God-speed. I believe you will bring renown and honor to Canada and to the Crown's Nest Pass and the towns from which you have been sent forth, today to do the will of the people of Canada and the British Empire."

"O Canada" was here rendered by the children's choir, under the direction of Mr. W. Shaw, and accompanied by Mrs. Bond at the piano.

The next speaker was Mayor Morrison, of Coleman. Mr. Morrison was glad to have this opportunity of being able to bid farewell, for the time being at least. He understood that the time was very short, and would cut down his remarks accordingly. When Lieut. Colonel Lyon was authorized to raise this battalion, in the early part of this year, he certainly undertook a tremendous task. But that task has been carried out just as successfully as any other man in this district could do it. When you consider for a moment the vastness of the territory from which he had to recruit, you will be at once understand that there is a great deal of credit coming to Col. Lyon and the officers in charge of the recruiting in the different towns, for the battalion now being brought up to nearly half strength. Last evening I intended to address the men of "B" Company, but through an unforeseen occurrence I was prevented from doing so, and I want to say to the officers and men of "B" Company here tonight that Coleman is proud of you. I want to say that Coleman is proud of the officer in command of "B" Company (Capt. Cameron), and the 192nd Battalion has reason to be proud of him, too. I might say the same of all the officers of the 192nd. I know pretty near all of them personally, and know that they are men of ability and courage, who will lead their men into battle without fear or defeat. No one knows how long this terrible war is going to last, and we do not want to see the end unless it be a complete victory for the Allies, that will put down Prussian militarism for all time and free the world. We cannot all go and put on the uniform. Some must stay behind. It is quite possible that a uniform will be in uniform before this war ends; but those who are staying behind will give at least a part of their time to see that the loved ones left behind are properly cared for.

A solo, entitled "Absent," was rendered by Mr. Harold Green, with piano accompaniment by Miss M. Williams. W. P. Williams was present to represent Bellevue, and to bid farewell to the officers and men of the 192nd. He said that we appreciated the fact that so many of our representatives were going to fight for our liberties. There may be some people who do not realize the gravity of the situation as it exists here. Many of us do. He said that as a citizen of Bellevue, he was proud of Bellevue. He has done well. He has given freely of his men, and her women have gone to work with their hands, preparing materials for those who are wounded and suffering. They have given their husbands and their sons, and what greater sacrifice can any woman make than that. Some of them are laying upon beds of pain. Many of them, yes, all of them, have acted the part of brave and courageous men, and he felt sure that the 192nd Battalion would do the same, and that the flag which was to be presented to the night would be nobly defended. We hoped to see the flag brought back to its home in the Pass. He wished the Battalion God-speed.

The presentation speech was made by Mr. J. E. Gilling, B.A. He felt that the occasion, which called us together this evening was one of mingled pride and regret. A feeling of regret is natural with us, when we see so many of our brave men go forth, when we see so much of the bone, sinew and brains of our manhood leaving us to do battle. It was distinctly natural that in the feelings which we possessed tonight there should be mingled a touch of regret. That tinged, however, was offset a thousand times by the pride we felt in sending forth five or six hundred stalwart sons to fight for the freedom we hope to enjoy hereafter and forever. He said that the officers and men of the 192nd Battalion were almost equal to that famous brigade that won the historical battle of Zinnwald. We are about to present you with a flag tonight. We are sorry that the time for our disposal did not give us the chance to procure one fitted for the occasion, but for the present have adopted a substitute. However, the flag is the same. You officers and men of the 192nd Battalion need not be told by us civilians what this flag is emblematic of. It is emblematic of what you are fighting for. It is emblematic of the institutions which your brothers in arms have been obliged to fight for. It is emblematic of the strong courage that prompts your going forth and of the principles you have sworn to uphold, and which you are upholding. He was sorry that the time allotted for the 192nd Battalion tonight would not allow the other gentlemen on the programme to speak. However, military matters must hold sway, and in presenting this flag to the officers and men of the 192nd, we need not tell you that we have an everlasting hope that you will do your duty; that, if need be, if the occasion calls those of us who are left behind, we will follow you to help in the fight. The boy who is holding the flag, Charles Howe, has three brothers who have already pledged themselves in the defence of their country, two of whom have seen the trenches. This boy in his uniform, and in his enthusiastic demeanor shows that he would be glad to go when opportunity arises and youth does not interfere. This is a spirit that animates those who are leaving behind. It may be that we shall all be there, because that flag must be upheld at all costs and at all sacrifices. I will ask Lieut. Col. Lyon to accept the flag.

In accepting the colors, Lieut. Col. Lyon assured the audience that on behalf of the 192nd Battalion, they appreciated very much the action of the citizens of the Pass in presenting these colors to the night. He would also assure them that they would endeavor, and felt satisfied that they would succeed in carrying this flag with them to the front. He felt that before this flag would return to the Pass it will have done over the Royal Palace

By Cecil B. DeMille and Jennie MacPherson

A Romance of the Balkan War, showing the Girl and her Noble Turkish Captive

"The Captive," the second photodrama in which Blanche Sweet has starred under the direction of the Lasky Feature Play Co. is based on the play of the same name by Cecil B. De Mille and Jennie MacPherson. It deals with events during the days of the Balkan wars, and is primarily concerned with the romance of a Montenegrin peasant girl and a Turkish nobleman.

In Berlin. As you see the men of this Battalion passing, most of you know them all, and most of you have been associated with them for years, and you know the stuff they are made of. Personally, he did not think there was any better body of men in the Dominion of Canada. He was satisfied that when their time came, they would be found every man of them able and ready to do his duty. In closing, he assured the mothers, wives and sweethearts that he had the officers of the 192nd would take every care of those who are under them. Wherever danger threatens, they will find that the officers will lead them, and lead them to victory.

"GOD SAVE THE KING"

Over a thousand people assembled at the C.P.R. depot to bid the boys farewell and up to the time of the departure of the troop train—10:25—could scarcely find standing room.

Not long ago a man died in Holland from eating too much hardware. He used to fill up on nuts, bolts, plate pencils, nails, coins, crows, hooks, tin tacks and cold chisels. Such diet should be prohibited by law. It is too difficult to masticate, although it will, for a short-time, give you an iron constitution.—Ex.

GERMAN REPLY TO THE BRITISH HISTORIAN'S INTERESTING INTERVIEW

Professor Oman Says That German Fighting Forces are Soon To Suffer Through Lack of Men, and That the Heavy Casualties are Having a Depressing Effect

"Lord Kitchener is reported to have said from the first that this will be a long war. I consider that its ending will prove to be more a question of psychology than of military happenings. But, in turn, it seems that military happenings alone will produce that state of public feeling in the belligerent countries upon which peace can be founded."

So Professor Oman, the distinguished Oxford historian, answered a question of the New York Times correspondent as to when and through what steps he thought the war would end. In 1914 Professor Oman brought out his first volume, "The Art of War in the Middle Ages." Since that date, as a study of his published works will recall, he has probably authoritatively explained more war history than any other living historian. And his views upon the present war are interesting for further reasons. From the very beginning he has occupied a responsible post in connection with the war, and he is what is really more important—he typifies a "University influence," which in England is a powerful force at the right elbow of statesmen.

"My work in connection with the censorship keeps me very busy," he said, "and I can't help feeling that the war is ready for peace. But for peace only upon impossible terms. There is more fighting to be done."

"This means, then," I said, as Professor Oman paused and looked reflectively into his pipe, "that the precious lives are yet to be lost; that still deeper layers of the world's wealth are yet to be sacrificed; that the agonies of all sorts are yet to be endured. Therefore, professor, would you hold the imperial negotiations for battles to be deplorable?"

"Not by any means," he replied. "No unwarlike quality, but what is the use when each side feels that they are on top today and the other side rightly mindful of the price they have already paid, is profoundly content that they have won the war tomorrow? It is a high duty to see that in any case Germany's force-philosophy does not produce a war so desperate as to see this war through to a successful end. And we have very good reasons for believing that we can do this if we only hang on."

"Let us take, for instance, the German casualties," he continued, "as reported by Colonel Repington, the military correspondent of The Times, who accurately represents what the Germans have acknowledged. Out of a total of 3,000,000 men, they have lost 2,700,000 are already out of action for good, and a simple calculation shows that such losses, even taking into account the classes which are yearly called to the colors, must mean the exhaustion of their reserves. And this being the case, it is demonstrable that their fighting forces will eventually sink through lack of men."

"The way in which they made their casualties public," he continued, "at the commencement of the war they printed the most elaborate details of every casualty; and now, when the action was given, the character of the wound stated, and sometimes it was even told what the man was doing in the hospital. All of this, too, was allowed to be reprinted in the newspapers. But now the German government has refused to allow to reprint or even to comment upon the casualties, and the full details as to the losses of the months of the war, are no longer stated in the official lists. The normal German regime, therefore, when a battalion is exterminated the local effect would be too depressing."

"But there are a number of interesting things besides this, which a constant comparison with the British and German press brought home to me. One is the very careful and subtle editing and garbling which news from English papers receives, and even American papers, for that matter. Colonel Harvey, for instance, was probably astonished when passages from an article of his entitled 'England Today,' which appeared in the January number of The North American Review, were joyfully quoted out of their context by the Hamburg Nachrichten as substantiating British atrocities."

"Then it is most interesting to see how inspired leaders, or as you say, editors, appear simultaneously in such different papers. The German Socialists Vorwärts, and let us say a militaristic and agrarian mouthpiece like the Deutsche Tageszeitung. The official character of these articles gives itself away by the simultaneous appearance and editing, and so they seem to me to be appearing more frequently now than during the earlier stages of the war. This indicates that the people need encouraging, and is just one more bit of evidence that makes it clearly apparent to me, as our duty, to keep on affecting German psychology."

Professor Oman kept on talking, and walked across the room to where some bookshelves, which covered a quarter of the whole wall, were standing with volumes dealing with the American Civil War. "I am looking," he explained, "for the book by General Robert E. Lee, who spoke of duty as the 'sublimest' word in the English language."

Mrs. Newspaper—No, my baby, because she is making her photographer look unpleasant.

Miracle Wheat

Popular Ideas Regarding Altered Productivity of Certain Varieties of Wheat

The United States department of agriculture disposes of the "miracle" wheat idea in the following statement:

The notion that there is a wonderful wheat which will make the fortune of its possessor is a very old one, and is almost as old as agriculture itself. In this country, at least, such a case for the miracle wheat is the so-called Jerusalem wheat as early as 1870, and under the name of Alaska wheat, this identical variety is still being pushed upon the unwary at exorbitant prices for seed. Almost equally exaggerated claims are made for the Stouter variety, but this particular wheat has not such a long history.

Because of the many attempts to produce a miracle wheat, it is not under one name or another on the farms of the country, the United States department of agriculture has made careful tests of their value. In bulletin 367 the results of these tests are set out, and it is conclusively shown that these varieties of wheat possess no peculiar quality which justifies high prices for seed.

As a matter of fact, the so-called Alaska wheat belongs to the Poulard group, which is a variety of wheat grown to some extent in the Mediterranean region of Europe, but not to any considerable extent in this country. The seeds of the wheat, made by the department of agriculture in a number of seasons, have yielded from 100 to 225 bushels an acre, but in many instances, not even fair yields have been obtained. The wheat has been shown also that in this respect Alaska wheat is not as good as many other varieties grown in this country.

These facts, however, have not prevented the promoters at various times from asserting that yields of from 100 to 225 bushels an acre can be obtained with this wheat.

It is not to be wondered at, therefore, by financial explanations of its origin. According to one author, the Stouter wheat was introduced to the United States by Dr. Keenle in 1870, originated in Palestine. A trader brought it to the United States back with him to Ireland and hung it as a sign above the farmhouse which he had built.

A farmer chanced to pick up some seeds from the sheaf, planted them, and some years later sold the produce of about 225 bushels an acre. Some of this wheat was brought over to America and distributed among the members of the Philadelphia Society for the Promotion of Agriculture. In this way it probably came to the attention of Dr. Keenle. The members of the society, however, do not appear to have appreciated it, for it is not mentioned in their reports.

This is the most authentic explanation of its introduction that we have. The wheat, however, has been the effect that when the coffin of an Egyptian mummy 1,000 or 4,000 years old was opened, a seed was found in it. The seed was planted, but only a single kernel grew.

This, however, was a wonderful yield, and very different from the yield of the Stouter wheat. The seed was responsible for such names as "Mummy Wheat," "3,000 Years Old," "Miracle Wheat," and "Alaska Wheat."

It is, of course, an absurdity, for even under the most favorable conditions of wheat can keep their vitality more than a few years.

In 1908 this wheat was brought forward at a time when the wheat crop of Egypt, but of Alaska. It was asserted that an Idaho farmer had secured a seedling of the wheat from a coast wheat plant with a branched head. He had brought back the seed to his home in Idaho, and in 1904, obtained 7 pounds to sow in 1906, and by 1906 had 1,545 pounds, an increase of 220 fold. From this it was argued that one bushel of seed per acre would produce 220 bushels, and that a grain company had purchased the seed from the farmer and would sell it at the rate of $20 a bushel.

The investigation of the department found that about 700 acres of the wheat were being grown for the commercial market. The average yield was estimated, not at 220 bushels but at 25 bushels.

The investigation was followed by a warning notice from the department and also by a fraud order from the department. The department is now investigating material circulated by the company. In spite of this fact, however, the wheat has been sold in 1909, and in 1910 the wheat was actually placed on exhibition at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Last year it was sold at $1 a bushel under the name of Keenle's wheat.

Other times this wheat has been sold under the names of Eldorado, many-headed, many-spined, Multiple-headed, Reed Smyrna, Syrian and Wild Goose.

The claims made by the promoters of the "Stouter" or "Miracle" wheat are fully as exaggerated, though less so than those of the Alaska wheat. According to the discoverer, in the spring of 1907 he planted a bushel of wheat in his garden, and when, headed, proved to be wheat. It was a bushel of wheat, and he became convinced that its remarkable yielding capacity would make it a very valuable variety.

The three great advantages which he asserted that this wheat possessed were that it would grow in any variety anywhere, that it sent up more stems from one seed than any other variety of wheat, and that it produced a seed an acre produced the maximum yields, while other varieties require 120 pounds.

These assertions were investigated by the department in much more extensive experiments than it made in the Alaska wheat. The tests show that the Stouter wheat is not so good as the Alaska wheat, and that the eastern half of the United States, but is somewhat better than others.

India has 12,300,000 acres planted to cotton and exports of 184 crop of 3,697,000 bales of cotton the year.

The Gasoline Shortage

Western Canada May Plan an Important Part in Solving the Difficulty

Hard on the wheels of the automobile comes a problem born of its popularity. Ten years ago the automobile was built for men of wealth. Its cost made it the symbol of that class which does not mind the price. With an average of fifteen hundred dollars, and the more advanced two and four cylinder cars at twice that figure, the dream of the horseless carriage as the universal vehicle was soon ended.

But inventors and manufacturers assured the public the dream would be realized. These conditions would pass away. One maker said he would build a car so cheap that the man who could not afford to buy a horse could afford to buy a car. This promise had been literally fulfilled. In the United States the number of automobiles in 1905, in 1909, in 1910, and in 1911, were 100,000, 200,000, 300,000, and 400,000, respectively.

And born of this popularity came a problem, foreseen only by the more thoughtful. The gasoline engine, the locomotive without coal or oil, is of exactly the same service as an automobile without gasoline. The gasoline engine, however, has been made by the oil industry to keep pace with the demand. The production of gasoline in the United States has been increased from 6,600,000 barrels in 1909 to 11,000,000 barrels in 1911, an increase of 65 per cent.

But in the same period the automobiles in use increased 225 per cent. The gasoline engine, therefore, has not kept pace with the demand.

The situation is not a new one. It is a situation which has arisen in wheat, or cotton, or beef, or manufactured products, the rising price induces a demand for more of the product, but in at least in some degree, reduces the supply.

Gasoline is a natural product, without gasoline, however, the automobile is a natural product. There is just so much gasoline in the bowels of the earth; when it has been run out, there will be no more gasoline. And already the day of exhaustion seems near at hand.

When the Interior Department of the United States, finds that some oil fields are already 90 per cent exhausted, an increase of 95 per cent, and in 1915 was 61.2 gallons of crude oil to one gallon of gasoline, but in 1916 was 61.2 gallons of crude oil to one gallon of gasoline, but in 1917 was 61.2 gallons of crude oil to one gallon of gasoline, but in 1918 was 61.2 gallons of crude oil to one Boost, Booster!

Boost, and the world boasts with you,
Kneek, and you're on the shelf,
For the world gets sick of one who'll kick,
And wishes he'd kick himself.

Boost when the sun is shining,
Boost when it starts to rain.
If you happen to fall, don't lie there and howl,

But get-up and boost again.

Boost for your own advancement,
Boost for the future soldier.

For the clasp that's found on the topmost

Is the booster every time.—Ex.

By-product

Coking Of Coal

The great development of by-product coking of coal in Germany has assured her an uninterrupted and adequate supply of modern explosives. The value of this development may be measured by the importance of munitions in deciding the outcome of the war.

In the past the whole world has been dependent upon Germany for dye-stuffs and other substances prepared from the derivatives of coal tar. Thus both in peace and war Germany possessed a great industrial advantage over other nations.

British plants are now being established to cope with the demand for picric acid and trinitro-toluene, while the United States is also profiting by the lesson learned from the war. Before the war there was but one company in the United States producing distillation products on a large scale, while the latest statistics show that over 8,000,000 tons of coal were carbonized in by-product ovens last year, yielding over 4,800,000 gallons of benzol and 1,300,000 gallons of toluol.
The full annual capacity of the benzol recovery plants now in operation and in course of construction is estimated to exceed 20,000,000 gallons.

Although Canada has the third largest reserves of coal in the world, twelve coke ovens, wasting the by-products, are still used in some sections and not a single additional by-product oven has been installed since the war. The war should teach Canada the obvious lesson that, whether for war or peace, it is crucially folly to neglect the utmost utilization of those resources which are lying latent in her bounteous supplies of bituminous coal.—W. J. D.

New Northern Alberta Homestead Map

The new edition of the Northern just been published by the Railway

the Interior, shows that the home-

the publication we find that settlers are grouping around McMurray, Fort Vermilion, Fort St. John, Hudson's
Hope and farther west at Round Lake, Sawridge and Mirror Landing.
The older settlements have increased considerably and patches of colour can be observed, indicative of extensive settlement at Peace River Crossing, Dunvegan, Spirit River, Grande Prairie, Grouseau, Lac la Biche, etc.
The Peace River block also contains good land which settlers are occupying as soon as surveyed.

Railway facilities have greatly improved since the last issue of this publication. Spirit River settlement and Grande Prairie, both to the north west of Edmonton, are now accessible by rail, while in the north easterly direction the track is laid as far as Christina Lake. Last year the Athabasca, the Peace River and the Fort McMurray steamers were all operating regularly, the two former from Hudson's Hope to Fort Vermilion.
The latter from just below the Ver-million cutes to Fort Smith, where it connected with the steamship Mackenzie River which goes as far as Fort McPherson. Five small boats operated very successfully on Smoky River taking passengers on incoming trains from the Settlement to Peace River Crossing.

It is interesting to read from the map what surveyors and explorers of the unsold portions of the Province. Now that there are better transportation facilities, investigations into the bituminous sand deposits of the Athabasca river will be of great interest. Bituminous coal appears throughout these north lands. Wheat and vegetable have been grown successfully at many remote points. There are districts which have been reported as valuable for grazing purposes, and others for their timber. It is of course a well known fact that the north country abounds in game and fish and that the fur trade will for a long time be come prove a valuable asset to the Province. The country is traversed by numerous rivers which in time should become important commercial throughfares and do much to help colonization.

An additional map of the southern half of the Province will be issued shortly. Copies of the northern sheet may now be procured without charge upon application to the Superintendent of the Railway Lands

Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

British Fleet Upheld Glorious Traditions

London, June 12, 7:30 p.m.—In a message to the men of the British fleet, which was given out here officially tonight, Admiral Jellicoe expressed high appreciation in the manner in which the ships of the fleet had fought during the Jutland sea fight on May 31.

"At this stage, when full information is unavailable," said the admiral, "it is impossible to go into details, but quite sufficient is known, to me to state definitely that the glorious traditions handed down to us by generations of gallant seamen were most worthily upheld."
"Weather conditions that were highly unfavorable robbed the fleet of the complete victory expected of all ranks. Our losses were heavy. We met many most gallant comrades. But although it is difficult to obtain accurate information as to the enemy's losses, I have no doubt we shall find they certainly were not less than our own. Sufficient information already has been received for me to make that statement with confidence. I hope to give the fleet fuller information on this point at an early date. I do not wish to delay appreciation of the work of the fleet, and my confidence in a future complete victory."

"The wonderful spirit and fortitude of the wounded fleet men with the greatest admiration. I am more proud than ever of the loyalty and devotion of the fleet commanded by such officers and men."

Recruits Wanted For The Canadian Engineers

Captain F. H. Myers, O.C. 4th Field
Trop C.E., has further orders to recruit 150 men for the Canadian Divisional Engineers. The class of men required are all classes of artisans such as carpenters, masons, plumbers, blacksmiths, wheelwrights, electricians, construction men and iron workers, and the teamsters. A limited number of cooks, tailors, soldiers, clerks, etc., are also required.

Already over 900 men have gone from the district and have done grand work at the front. All men are sent direct to the central training depot at Ottawa where they are trained before going overseas.
The work of recruiting in the north part of the Province is being carried out by Lieutenant W. R. Smith, C.E., Room 102, C.P.R. Building, Edmonton. The recruiting office in Calgary is at the Engineers' Headquarters, 215a 8th Avenue East, and men wishing to enlist should report as soon as possible to whichever recruiting office they are nearest.

All intending recruits should make a particular note to get a receipt for their railway fare into recruiting office, as if they are found medically fit, and are accepted, their fare will be returned to them.

It is desired to get these men away as quickly as possible, but any men who have business affairs to settle up with,
after having attested, be given a reasonable length of time in which to do this.

$20,000 a Year

Not Enough

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, last widow of the multi-millionaire late owner, who went down on the Titanic, insists it costs $27,593 a year to support her four-year old son, John Jacob Astor, Jr. There was slowed from the estate of his father, $20,000 a year for his support. That is not enough, say Mrs. Astor, in her last report to the surrogate of New York county. She spent over $7,000 additional. The Astor estate was worth between $80,000,000 and $100,000,000 at the death of John Jacob. The major portion went to his eldest son Vincent Astor.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We wish to announce to the travelling public that we have recently taken over the proprietorship of the Union Hotel at Blainmore. Since our assuming charge, we have given the house a thorough cleaning from top to bottom. Several changes have been made in the plan of the ground floor, in order to supply the demand for an up-to-date pool hall. Our pool hall is equipped with well set tables, which will in the near future be augmented by the addition of a large billiard table, an additional room for billiards being added to the hotel. Our dining room is receiving particular attention and is being thoroughly renovated, and when completed will be in first class condition. After June 30th we will convert the bar into refreshment parlor, where soft drinks, ice creams, etc., will be served. In addition to other branches, we have a modernly equipped tonorial parlor, which is in charge of Mr. Blomqvist, who has had over ten years' experience in the trade and is thoroughly competent. It has been stated that hotels cannot be operated on a paying basis without the bar. Our past experience leads us to believe that an institution catering for treatment to the public can command sufficient support to make the venture a paying one, and have decided to give it a trial. We therefore solicit a share of your patronage, and guarantee satisfaction at all times to everyone. Yours truly,

Q "I can get a custom tailor suit for that price," said a gentleman to the Semi-ready man, who was displaying $25, and $30, suitings.

Q So you may.

Q But one could not get a suit half so good for the same price.

Q A student of dress would pay twice as much for a Semi-ready suit as he would pay his tailor for a "bespoke suit." The Semi-ready suits are cut to a statistical physique type. He knows they fit him.

Q Improvement of quality has occupied the "Semi-ready" designers. They know there is a demand for real worth. The average man wants what he wants when he wants it—and he wants it to be good.

Semi-ready is good Tailoring. Suits for $15, $20, and $25.

Frank Happenings

Freddie Raynor is a Lethbridge visitor for a few days.

John R. MacDonald spent a few days in Calgary this week.

Mrs. J. Prentiss is down from Beaver Mines for a short time with her husband.

Mrs. C. McGillivray and children arrived on Wednesday morning from St. Albert, and will reside here in future.

H. J. Pozzi, contractor, of Blainmore, has a gang of men at work uncovering the watermain, which has been frozen up for some months.

A gang of men were busy the past week, endeavoring to thaw out the water main. It is hoped to have the whole service in working order by this week end.

A few friends of Lieut. R. E. Dunkin assembled at his home on Wednesday evening and presented him with a silver-mounted cane, suitably inscribed, thus showing their appreciation of his friendship during his stay here. We wish him good luck.

Letters were received from Corp. F. Marsh and Pte. Fred Parker on Monday, reporting all well, but the same day as the letters were received we noticed the names of the latter in the list of missing, together with that of T. Longworth and Harvey Wallace. We hope to hear of their safe recovery before long. T. Marsh has but recently been promoted to the rank of corporal.

The marriage of Miss Sarah McGraw, proprietress of the Calabash Club, to John McLean was solemnized at Calgary on Tuesday. The newly married couple returned to Frank on Monday morning, and on that night tendered a wedding supper and dance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson, where over thirty couples had been invited and made merry till the wee small hours of Tuesday morning. We join in extending well wishes to Mr. and Mrs. McLean.

A Frank Home Gives a Second Son

Word has just been received by Mr. D. Dunlop, Frank, that her son John was killed in action between June 2nd and 5th. Just last week we reported the loss of Mrs. Dunlop's second, eldest son James, which news came as a shock to the people of Frank and The Pass. Now the news that a second of three sons has been sacrificed makes the home of Mrs. Dunlop, Frank, the most sad in The Pass. Last week we visited Mrs. Dunlop, and were surprised to find with what fortitude she bore up under her severe loss. Mrs. Dunlop rather rejoices in that her son's lives have been sacrificed for a noble cause. Johnny was but eighteen years of age, and a bright and promising boy. Again we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

NOTICE

Any claims against the 192nd Battalion will be settled on application to Sarcee Camp, Calgary.

H. E. LYON, Lieut.-Col.
Commanding 192nd O. Battalion.

Business men will have to make up their minds for an advance in the cost of printing. The wholesalers have cancelled their price list and notified us that prices will steadily advance. In some cases paper stock has more than doubled in value. Ensign Bond, one of the most popular brands of paper, has been taken off the market as the manufacturers report that they cannot get raw material. We got a severe jolt last week when we quoted a customer a price for 3000 yards and found when the invoice arrived that the stock cost us 5c more than we were getting for the whole job completed. Ink has also steadily advanced, some brands several hundred per cent. Kaiser Bill, has a whole lot to answer for, and the worst of it is that even if we do succeed in getting his carcass, it won't commence to pay for the damages—Ex.

On a straight vote taken by the Presbyterian general assembly at Winnipeg on Wednesday, church union was favored by 406 to 88.

The Bellevue footballers went to Coleman on Saturday and defeated the Colemanites to the tune of 3 to 2. The game was a good one.

The members of the Red Cross Society wish to thank through the medium of the press Mr. Johnson, Manager of the Lyric Theatre, Bellevue, for the handsome sum of $65.10 received from the benefit performance given in aid of the Red Cross by Mr. Johnson on May 17th. The above amount represents the net profit of the evening's receipts. Mr. Johnson having given all to the Red Cross.

This week three cablegrams reached Bellevue, bearing the news that two of our boys were missing and one wounded at the front. Mrs. Deering was notified that her son Clifford had been missing since June 2nd. Mrs. McLean received word that her husband, Joseph McLean, had been missing for the same period; while Charles Burrows had word that his son Charles was wounded while on duty somewhere in France. It is to be hoped that the missing ones will turn up safe and sound, and that Charlie will soon recover from his wounds.

On Sunday last the local Oddfellows observed Memorial Day. A memorial service was held in the I.O.O.F. hall at 2 p.m., conducted by Noble Grand W. Chappell, of Bellevue Lodge 118, and Past Grand J. F. Hunter and W. J. Bartlett, of Blainmore Lodge 65. Following this service the members were lined up in procession by Marshall, David Reid, P.G. of Coleman Lodge 36, and paraded to Hillcrest cemetery, where the grave of Bro. John Hood was decorated. Bro. Hood was a member of Blainmore Lodge, and was killed in the Hillcrest mine explosion of June 19th, 1914. The service at the graveside was conducted by Messrs. Chappell, Hunter and Bartlett, and was largely attended.

Cowley Happenings

A recruiting officer was in town on Wednesday.

W. E. Tustian is still aggravated with rheumatism.

Elwin Tustian is now assistant agent at Hillcrest.

Ralph Easterbrook has enlisted in the 192nd battalion.

John McLaren and bride returned from the east on Friday morning.

Miss Lawson, of Owen Sound, has been secured as teacher for the Tennessee school.

It is said that it is German measles we have here now, and some are very sick, indeed, with them.

Sergt. K. Swift was down from Blainmore Tuesday night and returned west Wednesday morning.

Measles are spreading fast in this district. The school has been compelled to close on account of them, and will remain so until after the holidays.

G. G. Miller, of Fishburn, who is on his way to Portland, Oregon, to visit relatives, travelled in company with Mr. and Miss Blackburn as far as Spokane.

Several people were disappointed by the "movie" man not making his appearance on the night of the 8th. Some drove from a long way out in the country to see the pictures and then were disappointed.

The lecture and lantern slides which were given in the Presbyterian church on Friday night were very good and instructive, covering many phases of the war, men, battlefields, operations by land, sea and air.

H. E. Blackburn and daughter Stella, of Fredonia, Kansas, were visiting friends here this week, until Friday morning, when they took the west-bound passenger train for Spokane, where they will visit for some time. From there they will visit different points in California and Illinois before returning home.

"Ned" Peters, son of A. M. Peters, manager of the Bank of Montreal, Calgary, was killed in action at the front. We knew Ned very well, having been a close neighbor of his at Curling, Newfoundland, eight years ago. Mr. Peters was among the first Calgary boys to join the universities battalion.

Never take booze across the line, unless you have it concealed within your internal anatomy. The other day Big Andy Johnson and some friends suited to Molson. They had a bottle of brandy. They drank the contents and filled the bottle with water on this side of the line. An officer at Molson searched the car, and found the bottle. He got the scent which does not convict even in Washington.—Greenwood Lodge.
